asterisk ampersand asterisk: The Poetry of The Centennial Planetarium transforms photographs of locations within the once-derelict Centennial Planetarium into text-based poetry. Photographs are opened as .TXT files, run through open-source text-to-speech software and then transcribed into blocks of text; thus “creating” the poems of the building itself. Poetry here becomes a non-human form of testifying to how architecture and space is represented, how non-sentient software may “speak” of its perspective.
